

Talent Alliance Announces Development of Domestic Recruiting Web Resources for Chinese Recruiters

BEIJING--(Marketwire - June 3, 2010) - Talent Alliance, Inc. (PINKSHEETS: TLAN) announced today that the Company has initiated development of a domestic recruiting and social media website for Chinese recruiters.

The new website which will be co-developed in Shanghai by Global Talent will focus on brining training, best practices and a social media outlet to China's thousands of recruiters and independent recruiters. The site will also enable independent recruiters to access and fully utilize the Talent Alliance and Global Talent recruiting sites, driving capacity to fulfill job orders and revenue.

"The Chinese recruiting market is currently growing and there is very limited access to best practices and no place for recruiters to share ideas in a recruiter focused community. More importantly, China presents a very significant market for independent recruiters who work part time or are not affiliated with a company who wish to either work from home or start their own business," says the Company's CEO Jeremy Stobie. "We intend to provide them with the tools, information and capacity to get started and flourish in the industry. There are thousands of recruiting firms in China, however, the number of capable individuals that can supplement and grow this market on an independent level is truly massive. If we are able to successfully assist the Chinese entrepreneur to enter the recruiting market and use Talent Alliance's resources we can truly make a large impact in the China market."

The Company plans to complete and launch the initial site by the 4th Quarter of this year. The site will be fully integrated with all of Talent Alliance's technology offerings in China and will enable independent recruiters to access one of the fastest growing markets in the world. The site will provide best practices, peer to peer interaction, training, and social media.
